I'll be there for you!

That's the song that started each episode of Friends. For 10 years, millions of fans followed the lives of Rachel, Ross, Monica, Phoebe, Chandler and Joey.

In the first episode, aired on NBC television in 1994, Rachel leaves her fiancé at the church. She says she can't stand the idea of marrying. She moves in with Monica, but finds out that life is hard without her Daddy's financial help. In Episodes 2 and 3 we see the characters at home, watching TV and just hanging out. Monica cleans everything to impress her parents, Phoebe receives money from her bank that's not hers and Chandler starts smoking again. We also learn that Ross really likes Rachel, but can't tell her.

Over the years audiences learnt that each character had a very particular personality. Rachel was the most glamorous, while Phoebe was fun, friendly and sometimes irrational. Ross was unreliable in relationships and his sister Monica was too organised and a bit obsessive. Chandler was the handsome, sarcastic guy and Joey was nice, but not very intelligent.

In 2004 the programme finished in the US. In the last episode Ross and Rachel finally get together. Chandler and Monica have twins and name them Erica and Jack and then they move to the suburbs together.
